

Camp Kotok, Here We Come!

Tomorrow I head for the backwoods of Maine and Camp Kotok – always one of the high points of my year. Most of my readers know by now that Camp Kotok is the annual fishing trip cum economics gab-fest hosted by David Kotok of Cumberland Advisors. It's an invitation-only event that has been compared to Jackson Hole and even Davos – except that here you get to catch your own lunch.

David hatched the idea after surviving the attack on the World Trade Center, where he was attending a conference on the morning of 9/11. “We all had a conversation about how fragile life is and how good it is to go somewhere and talk about what's on your mind in a quiet setting,” he says.

Read full post here:
<http://www.mauldineconomics.com/outsidethebox/camp-kotok-here-we-come>